The College

Broward Community College provides higher education and technical and occupational training for the citizens of Broward County, its district by law. As the first public higher education institution in the county, Broward Community College functions as the principal provider of undergraduate higher education for the residents of Broward County. As one of the twenty-eight community colleges in the Florida system, Broward Community College is designed to be a community-based institution that offers a comprehensive range of programs responsive to changes in the community and in technology. Where appropriate, these programs are articulated with the public school system, area vocational schools, and upper-level institutions to insure that students can move smoothly from one system to another.

Through this wide variety of degree and certificate programs and continuing education courses, the College attracts a great diversity of students, including individuals planning to complete a bachelor's degree program, people seeking to acquire job-entry skills, employees desiring to upgrade skills for promotion or career change, and individuals seeking education for their personal enrichment. From high school students who enroll in a course to accelerate their college education, to retirees who return to education after decades devoted to other pursuits, a multitude of age groups is represented at Broward Community College. These culturally diverse students span the learning spectrum from developmental to gifted. The College's programs and services are designed to serve the community by meeting the higher education needs of all these individuals.

Serving as the principal entry-level institution for higher education in its district, the College is also: a source of cultural enrichment; a resource for community development, business, and industry; and an avenue for continued skill upgrading enhancement and retraining. The College operates under statutory authority and rules of the Florida Board of Education. The Division of Community Colleges, which is subject to the overall supervision of the Florida Board of Education, is responsible for statewide leadership in overseeing and coordinating the individually governed public community colleges. State appropriations and student fees provide operational funding for College programs. Construction and building maintenance funds are provided through

History of the College

In 1959, the Florida Legislature authorized creation of the Junior College of Broward County and members of the community began work on making the college a reality. An influential group of Broward supporters lobbied Washington to provide land at the former Forman Field in Davie, a training site for World War II Naval aviators. A local advisory board was assembled in October 1959 and guided by the State Board of Educational Regulations, began developing programs and hiring staff. The college's first president, Dr. Joe B. Rushing, vice president for administration at Howard Payne College in Brownwood, Texas, was appointed March 17, 1960. He reported for work on April 7.

The following autumn, the Junior College of Broward County opened its doors to its first class – 701 students – in buildings that were formerly part of Naval Air Station Junior High on the western portion of the Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport property. Dr. John Allen, president of the University of South Florida, addressed the college's first graduating class – 73 students—at War Memorial Auditorium on June 10, 1962. Among its members was Parris Nelson Glendening, who went on to serve two terms as Maryland's 59th governor. The Junior College of Broward County's first permanent building was completed in Davie at the former Forman Field site in August 1963 and the college officially moved to the Central Campus.

Dr. Rushing resigned in 1965 and was succeeded by Dr. Myron Blee, director of the Office for Emergency Planning in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Blee was in turn succeeded by Dr. A. Hugh Adams, who assumed his duties as president on April 15, 1968.

Florida's junior colleges originally were governed by its Boards of Public Instruction, who also governed elementary and secondary instruction in each county. In 1968, the same year the JCBC changed its name to Broward Junior College, the Florida Legislature removed the junior colleges from the county school boards' purview and turned the colleges' advisory boards into district boards of trustees.

In September 1970, the District Board of Trustees changed the college's name to Broward Community College, a change that better reflected the comprehensive nature of the college's programs and its crucial role in the community. Also in 1970, the South Campus got its start in temporary headquarters adjacent to Memorial Hospital in Hollywood. North Campus, in Coconut Creek, was dedicated in 1972.

Dr. Adams served as president for 19 years. After he announced his intention to retire on December 31, 1986, the District Board of Trustees renamed the Central Campus the A. Hugh Adams Central Campus in his honor.

Named to succeed Dr. Adams was Dr. Willis Holcombe, executive vice-president at Brevard Community College, and a protégé of Dr. James Wattenbarger, the architect of the state community college system. Dr. Holcombe had gone to Brevard from Broward, where he had served as a professor, executive assistant to President Adams, Central Campus academic dean, and then Central Campus provost. Dr. Holcombe served as president for 17 years, from 1987 to 2004. He initiated efforts that led to significant growth in enrollment, facility and program expansion. Dr. Holcombe also was instrumental in creating a variety of innovative partnerships to benefit the college, its students and the community at large.

Dr. Holcombe retired in January 2004. Succeeding him as the college's fifth president is Dr. Larry Anthony Calderon, an expert in strategic planning who served as president of California's Ventura College for the nine years preceding his appointment to BCC.

Beginning with a small university-parallel program, Broward Community College has expanded to serve the area's needs by expanding its curricula to include a wide variety of technical and healthcare programs which, in turn, help assure the viability of Broward County.
