Targeted Recruitment Goals

- Increase the number of males in program (specifically Black and Hispanic males) Specifically target Broward College male students and graduates into the Teacher Education Program by providing education relative to this career and the need for teachers in underserved communities. Offer scholarship support to pursue a BS in Education degree.
- Increase the number of overall minorities in program to equal or greater than 50% by fall 2009 of the current and future enrollments by offering scholarship support to an existing pool or Broward College students and graduates.
- Increase number of students in Math and Science by January 2010 by providing more education about BCs Math and Science Programs focus and curriculum design.
 - Barry University has eliminated Math and Science Ed programs
 - FAU and FIU Math and Science ED programs are Math and Science Programs with Education courses

Call Me Mister Program Fall 2009 Starts at Broward College in Fall 2009

The mission of the Call Me MISTER National Initiative is to increase the pool of available teachers from a broader, more diverse background, particularly among the States lowest performing elementary schools. Student participants are largely selected from among under-served, socio-economically disadvantaged and educationally at-risk communities.
