LEED (Leadership in Energy & Environmental Design)

What is LEED Certification?

LEED is a voluntary, consensus-based national rating system for developing high-performance, sustainable buildings. Developed by USGBC, LEED addresses all building types and emphasizes state-of-the-art strategies for:

- Sustainable site development
- Water savings
- Energy efficiency
- Materials and resources selection
- Indoor environmental quality

LEED is a practical rating tool for green building design and construction that provides immediate and measurable results for building owners and occupants. Buildings matter. Healthy environments improve lives while they improve the quality of life on the planet. There is renewed attention to the importance of buildings that are energy efficient, ecologically balanced and wise in using resources. Building professionals know that registering their project and earning certification through carefully meeting and documenting the requirements reaps rewards for the building's owners, users and the surrounding community.

Who should attend?

- Executives that design, build, supply or develop new buildings
- Architects
- Interior designers
- Construction professionals
- Building owners/managers
- Government agencies
- Project managers
- Real estate professionals
- Mechanical, civil, industrial and electrical engineers
- Construction managers
- Maintenance staffers
- Purchasing agents
- Documentation processors
- Real estate marketing & sales personnel

Why attend LEED professional training?

LEED Professional Accreditation distinguishes building professionals with the knowledge and skills to successfully steward the LEED Certification process - USGBC. Benefits of certification include:

- RECOGNITION
- EXPERTISE
- REPUTATION
- LEADERSHIP

Everyone involved in the planning, design, development and management of buildings needs to understand the many facets of the LEED Rating System, and how it relates to the design and construction phases of a project. Whether you deliver sales proposals, build buildings or maintain them once built, the more you know, the more you and your organization benefit.

The Basics

Each course offers 8 hours of intensive presentation, discussion and interaction. Tuition is just $399, and includes all class materials, parking and lunch. Each course covers the following:

- Knowledge of green buildings and construction
- Familiarity with the LEED certification process, including documentation, credit intents, requirements and strategies
- Understanding of the costs and benefits of LEED over the life of the building
- Familiarity with resources and processes used in green design and construction

Courses Offered Fall 2009

LEEDv3 (2009) Building Design + Construction Exam Prep Workshop – August 28 or November 13

This is the latest course for technical review and preparation for anyone looking to take the new LEED AP exam. This course gives in-depth information on each Credit and Intent. Recommended for those who design, develop and document green buildings, or want to.

LEED Green Associate Program – September 25

This course is for anyone new to the LEED Rating Systems, including those planning to eventually take the LEED AP exam. This is also the perfect introduction for those who need a working knowledge of LEED for presentations, proposals and building management. Attending the course prepares students to take the LEED Green Associate exam.

LEED for General Contractors – October 9

This course covers the detailed requirements and responsibilities of General Contractors in the LEED documentation and project process. This is the course for hands-on professionals.

Meet our Instructors

South Florida is uniquely blessed to have two of the most recognized USGBC instructors in the country as local residents. Their commitment to the education and success of LEED AP candidates is unparalleled. Both also have extensive field experience, making them highly desirable leaders for this new series of workshops.

Bob Kobet, AIA, LEED AP

Bob is the successful President of Sustainaissance International, Inc., an architectural consulting firm specializing in sustainable design and development, high performance LEED Certified buildings and environmental education. Since 1977, Bob has been involved in green building and sustainable development projects throughout the country and around the world. Bob is well known for his ability to combine a deep understanding of the subject with the passion and ability to explain complicated and complex issues in simple, usable terms. This talent and commitment led USGBC to select him as one of the first 12 professionals selected to conduct LEED accredited workshops.

Lillian Chiu, Assoc AIA

Lillian has served as the International Director of Marketing for a 350 person architecture and engineering design firm. Ms. Chiu currently serves as faculty at the University of Miami, where she developed the institution's LEED Curriculum. An engaging speaker with a broad perspective on industry best practices, she has served on the board of the local chapters of the AIA and the USGBC.
